No.

There is no way of preventing them from getting out, all it takes is ONE person to cobble together a system that disregards the flag to put it out for general copying.

And since we don't rule the world, odds of such as system/device being created due to such an attempt to prevent it approaches certainty.

Why should I pay in order to limit my use, for hardware protection that couldn't be forced on anyone? Why limit my own fair use rights?